

Table of Contents

Preface

viii

Part I: Communication and Society

Chapter 1 Communication and Society	2
Introduction	2
An Ever-Changing Communications Universe	2
Communication and Social Behaviour	6
The All-Pervasive Range of Influence of Communication	6
Communication as Transmission and as Transformation	10
Oral Society	14
Literate Society	17
Electronic Society	19
Modes of Communication	22
Other Derivative and Different Viewpoints	26
Summary	26
Related Websites	27
Further Readings	27
Study Questions	28
Learning Outcomes	28
Chapter 2 Mass Communication and Modern Society	29
Introduction: Definitions	29
The Mass Media	35
Information, Entertainment, Images, and Symbols	52
Members of Society: The Mass Audience	53
Summary	54
Related Websites	55
Further Readings	56
Study Questions	56
Learning Outcomes	56
Chapter 3 Media: History, Culture, and Politics	57
Introduction	57
The European Roots of Media and Western Society	57
The Industrial Revolution, Communication, and Social Form	60
The Beginnings of the Modern Press	63
Perspectives on the Press	64
The Traditional Mass Media and Canadian Realities: History and Structure	65
Canada: Liberal Principles in a Conservative State	69
The Mass Media and Canadian Culture	70
Politics and the Canadian Media Today	74
Information Needs, Communication Realities, and the United Nations	77
Summary	78
Related Websites	79
Further Readings	79
Study Questions	79
Learning Outcomes	80

Part II: Content and Audiences

Chapter 4 Theoretical Perspectives on Media Content	82
Introduction	82
Representation and Signification	82
Intertextuality, Polysemy, and the Indeterminacy of Representation	83
Communication Theory as Social Theory	86
The Encoding/Decoding Model	86
Theories of the Media, Theories of Society	89
Perspectives on the Study of Content	92
Organizational Studies and Professional Values	98
Content Analysis	98
Genre or Media Form Analysis	99
Media Creating Meaning: Possibilities and Limitations	106
Media and Reality: Where Lies the Difference?	106
Media Representation and Reductionism	108
Challenging Standards: Pornography, Erotica, and Freedom of Speech	110
Summary	112
Appendix: A Semiotic Analysis of a Black Label Ad Series	112
Related Websites	116
Further Readings	116
Study Questions	117
Learning Outcomes	117
Chapter 5 Theoretical Perspectives on Audiences	118
Introduction	118
A Theoretical Synthesis of Meaning-Generating Systems	119
Effects, Agenda-Setting, and Cultivation Analysis	121
Uses and Gratification Research	122
Marxist Analysis and the Frankfurt School	123
British Cultural Studies	124
Feminist Research	126
Reception Analysis	127
Industry Audience Research	128
Audience Research and the Public Interest	134
The Transforming and Vanishing Audience	135
Summary	135
Appendix: The World's Best Readership Database—PMB, A Case Study	136
Related Websites	144
Further Readings	144
Study Questions	145
Learning Outcomes	145

Part III: Major Influences on Media Functioning

Chapter 6 Communications Law and Policy	148
Introduction	148
Governing Communications	148
The Legal and Regulatory Frameworks of Communication	149
Policy Development	150
Telecommunications Policy	151
Broadcasting Policy	155
A Future for Broadcast Regulation?	163
Summary	163
Related Websites	164
Further Readings	164
Study Questions	165
Learning Outcomes	165
Chapter 7 Cultural Industries Law and Policy	166
Introduction	166
The Policy Process	166
Cinema	168
Music Recording	173
Book Publishing	179
Magazine Publishing	182
Newspaper Publishing	189
New Media	193
Summary	195
Related Websites	196
Further Readings	196
Study Questions	196
Learning Outcomes	197
Chapter 8 The Structure and Role of Ownership	198
Introduction	198
Allocating Resources	198
Individual Freedom, Public Interest, and the Free Market	199
Historical Background: Function and Ownership	202
Organizing Structures	203
Public Ownership	208
Private Ownership	211
Tempering the Profit Motive	217
Implications of Private Media Ownership	219
Media Democratization	221
Summary	222
Related Websites	223
Further Readings	223
Study Questions	223
Learning Outcomes	224
Chapter 9 Journalists as Content Producers	225
Introduction	225
News as Content Production	225
Ideals of Journalism	228
Newsmakers	230

The Legal and Policy Contexts of News Production	232
Canadian Law and Journalism	236
Making News (and Profits?)	241
Ownership and Control	243
News as Storytelling	248
Summary	249
Related Websites	249
Further Readings	250
Study Questions	250
Learning Outcomes	251

Chapter 10 Communication Technology and Society: Theory and Practice	252
Introduction	252
Technology Defined	252
Thinking about Technology	252
Technology and Western Society	255
Centralization, Decentralization, and Control	257
Technological Convergence: Old Myth, New Reality	257
The Special Case of the Internet	261
Technological Development: Rationales and Realities	262
Technology, International Law, and Copyright Law	264
Achievements in the Information World	267
Nuisances, Problems, Dangers	270
The 'So What' of Technological Developments	272
Reflections on Our Technological Society	272
Summary	274
Related Websites	275
Further Readings	276
Study Questions	276
Learning Outcomes	276

Part IV: Our Evolving Communications World

Chapter 11 Globalization	278
Introduction	278
Defining Terms	281
Mass Media as Agents of Globalization	281
Global Information Trade	284
Theories of International Communication Flows	287
A New World Information and Communication Order	288
From NIWICO to the Present	290
Changing Notions of Place	292
Summary	293
Related Websites	294
Further Readings	294
Study Questions	295
Learning Outcomes	295
Chapter 12 Communication in a Digital Age	296
Introduction	296
From Mass Distribution of Symbolic Products to Mass Communication	296

Communication and Democracy	297	Summary	313
Content and Audiences	300	Study Questions	314
Four Influences on Media Operations	302
Globalization	306	Glossary	315
Two Horizons of Change	307	References	324
Conclusion: The Media, the State, and Maher Arar—Lessons for Tomorrow?	312	Index	339